Jeffrey 3.0 out of 5 stars. If your cart starts showing these symptoms, the first thing you should look at is your speed controller. You will likely find the switch under the seat of your golf cart, but if you're having trouble finding it, consult your owner's manual. Once disconnected, you should remove the speed controller cover and then reconnect the negative cable. Sometimes the problem can be as simple as some loose wiring and all you need to do is make sure everything is plugged in tight. Lastly, you can check the voltage of the controller battery by connecting both the positive and negative probes to the battery. If there is an issue with your cart's solenoid, some of the symptoms can be the same as a malfunctioning speed controller. Attach the positive probe to the solenoid post nearest the battery and get the reading.

If the solenoid and battery readings are identical, there is an issue with the solenoid. However, if the reading isn't at least 3 volts less than the battery, the problem is with the resistor and it should be replaced. The two possible problems you can identify this way is either a bad speed controller, or a bad directional switch or motor. If you do, we hope you can use the steps in this article to help you identify and fix the issue. Mt Pleasant, SC 29464 843 8818894. EZGo states to check the engine oil once a week, and add if needed. For every 20 hours of running time, check the engine over for any debris, unusual noises or oil leaks. After every 50 hours, check the fuel system for any cracks or leaks. Also check the spark plug boots for any cracks or dry rotting. After every 125 hours, clean or replace the air and oil filter, and perform an oil change. After 250 hours, replace the spark plugs and fuel filter. Recommended Oil and Spark Plugs. The oil weight to use is 10W30 to 10W40. The categories the oil must meet is either SF, SG, or CC. These are very common motor oil ratings, and most oils made for automotive use will meet this criteria. The recommended spark plugs are manufactured by NGK, number NGK BPR4ES. The gap is 20 thousandths to 30 thousandths of an inch. Engine Type. For all models of the EZGo, the engine is air cooled and produces 9 horsepower. The engine is a two-cylinder unit, displacing 18 cubic inches. It has an overhead cam, with overhead valves. The ignition is solid state with an RPM limiter, or a governor that prevents overrevving.
